The POWER of FAITH

Through Their Own Utterances it is evident that faith strengthened the lives of the men numbered among our greatest presidents.
"Father, so frame this heart of mine, that I may ever delight to live according to thy will . . ." George Washington.
"Without the assistance of that Divine Being . . . I cannot succeed. With that assistance, I cannot fail." Abraham Lincoln.
"The bible does not teach us to shirk difficulties but to overcome them." Theodore Roosevelt.
"I ascribe to Bible study the help and strength which I have had from God to pass in peace through deeper trials . . . A soul that has been refreshed and made happy early in the morning meets the service, the trials and the temptations of the day with a power far different from that of one that has had no spiritual preparation." Woodrow Wilson.

MILLIONS DO, YOU SHOULD TOO
Millions choose Chiropractic because they find that they can obtain quick and lasting relief from many of their ailments. Under Chiropractic care, common aches and pains clear up very quickly. Acute conditions such as colds, or other "infectious" conditions break up in a fraction of the time required under other healing methods. Prompt chiropractic treatment will prevent the development and progress of many chronic conditions, and clinical records show that persistent Chiropractic care will cure most of them.

use It was insured for $3,000 and is a total loss. It cannot be rebuilt as a home.

The dwelling was frame with an asphalt type of siding. A shallow loft was above the living area. The house consisted of a living room-kitchen combination across the front of the building, a small bath in the kitchen area and two bedrooms in the rear.

Most severely burned was Mrs. Nitzband, found seated on a couch near the door. The couch faced a television set, which may or may not have been on. The television did not start the fire, Chief Arnold said. A portable electric heater stood next to the television set. It was not known if the heater was on.

The fire was hottest and apparently started in the area of the couch, but there are no electrical outlets or other obvious fire causes in the area, the chief said.

Breathed Smoke, Gas

The children died of a massive inhalation of gas and smoke, Coroner Bernard Kemps said a medical examination showed. An autopsy was performed on Mrs. Nitzband and William.

Kemps said there was nothing in his investigation to indicate anything but accidental causes for the deaths.

Mrs. Nitzband's former husband, Rodney, 28, returned to Appleton from Antigo Friday night to see his surviving children before Linda died.

Terrific Heat

Firemen could not enter the flaming building when they arrived, which was seconds after Hanson dragged the second child from the house. Windows were broken to let the heat out, and firemen were in the building with air masks as soon as the heat level dropped. The fire was out in seconds.

The whole explosion and fire probably took less than 10 minutes to wipe out a family.

This is fire prevention week

The Father of Five Children burned in a house fire Friday morning. Rodney Nitzband, 28, center, told Post-Crescent reporter David Schaefer Friday evening that his former wife had planned to move out of their little house this month. With him at the county welfare office was his fiancée, Mrs. Helen Slaughter.

House Was Too Small, Cold, Nitzband Says

BY DAVID SCHAEFER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

A sandy-haired, 28-year-old construction worker sat on the edge of a desk in the Outagamie County Public Welfare Department ofice Friday evening. He was nervous, then thoughtful as he talked about his children and former wife.

The wife and three of his five children were burned to death Friday morning. One of the children died later at Appleton Memorial Hospital. The other is in critical condition.

Rodney Nitzband, still wearing bib overalls and a gray work shirt, explained he had seen his former wife and children last Saturday, when he took the children out for the afternoon.

"She was going to move at the end of the month. She said the place was too small for the five kids and she could never keep it warm enough."

Nitzband paced the floor — peering between the venetian blinds occasionally at nothing in particular.

With him was Mrs. Helen Slaughter, 120 E. Pacific St. She is Nitzband's fiancée and drove to Antigo shortly before noon Friday to tell him what happened.

"He didn't believe me. He put his hands on my shoulders and asked if I was telling the truth," Mrs. Slaughter said after she and Nitzband had been to the Brettschneider Funeral Home and to the hospital.

Couldn't Identify One

"They wouldn't let me see them (the victims) at the hospital. They wouldn't let me identify them." He sighed and stopped pacing to sit on the edge of a table.

"I saw the other two in the nett St. owner of the property hospital. One is Sharon; the other said the small cottage at the rear one — I really couldn't say of which one it is."

The second child was Linda, 2, who died a few hours later.

Funeral services for Mrs. Audrey Nitzband and the four children will be Monday.

Ordinance Bans Further Use of Converted Garage

The tiny three-room home that became a fire trap for a young Appleton mother and her five small children is going to be ordered torn down.

Building Inspector Walter Bogan said today he inspected the converted garage at 1505½ N. Bennett St. after the fire and found it is no longer safe.

Under the city's zoning ordinance, the dwelling is classified as a non-conforming use, in existence before being covered by the ordinance. When more than 50 per cent is destroyed, such a non-conforming use building may not be rebuilt or repaired.

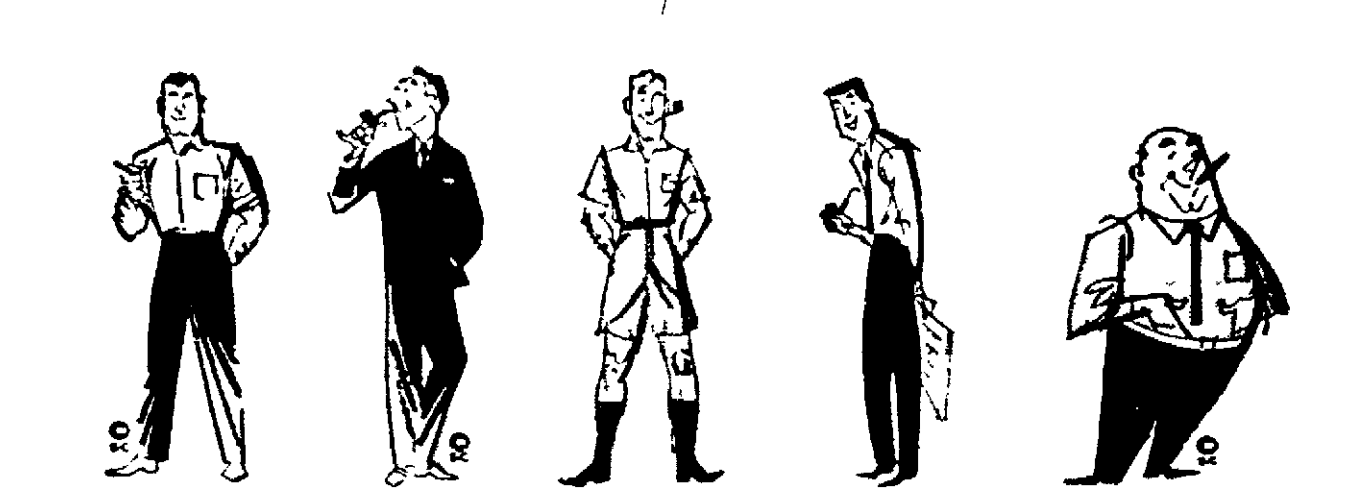

Two Dwellings Banned

Two residences on one lot are no longer allowed.

The second child was Linda, 2, who died a few hours later.

Funeral services for Mrs. Audrey Nitzband and the four children will be Monday.

Meanwhile, the paper's mechanical and engraving departments prepared and Edward Deschler were sent for the rush of last-minute copy to the scene. A Salute to Newspaperboys

Today, the final day of National Newspaper Week, is devoted to the newspaper carrier boys. This is altogether fitting since the work of these boys is the final task in completing the service of newspapers to the American public.

Freedom of the press is one of the most important freedoms guaranteed to the people of America by the Bill of Rights. Without this freedom there could be no great nations as we know them today. The right to gather news and to print it is a right absolutely essential to living in this complicated world but without the work of the carrier boys the gathering and publishing of news would be useless unless some other means could be found to get the papers to the homes of readers.

Today there are well over half a million boys throughout the United States engaged in this business of delivering newspapers. For them it is a job and it is a good job because it teaches them the basic rules for doing business. Each carrier boy is a small businessman who has purchased a stock of papers and sold them to the readers at a profit. Many successful businessmen in the United States today can trace their training back to the newspaper route. Among these men is President Dwight D. Eisenhower who, long ago, had a newspaper route in Abilene, Kan. Recently he had this to say about his experience as a newspaper boy. "He is a member of our competitive economy—a youngster who is practicing the axiom that we value only those things that we earn by our own efforts. He is getting a magnificent start for a life of usefulness in a democracy that places a premium on initiative, intelligence and energy."

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, has for many years been deeply concerned over the growing delinquency among American youths. In his study of this subject he has noted that juvenile delinquency among newspaper boys is well below that of teenagers as a whole. In fact, he says, it is a rare occasion when one of them finds himself in trouble with the law.

Thus today is a good day to salute these young businessmen who are building knowledge and character while they earn a fair income and at the same time enjoy the privilege of performing an important service to the people of the community.

Milwaukee's Debt Limit

In the election on Nov. 8, the voters of Wisconsin will be asked to approve a change in the state constitution to permit Milwaukee county to increase its debt limit. The proposal is to amend the constitution so that the limitation on indebtedness of counties having a population of 500,000 or over shall be based on the value of taxable property in such county as equalized for state purposes rather than on the local assessed valuation of such property.

The matter of the indebtedness of Milwaukee county will seem to most people to be a matter to be decided by the people of that county. However, since the limit on indebtedness of all counties is set by the state constitution, Milwaukee county cannot change its limit unless the people of the state agree to it.

At present the limit of indebtedness for all counties is fixed at 5 per cent of the local assessed valuation. In Milwaukee county, the local assessed valuation averages about 50 per cent of the state's equalized true value so that the proposed increase in debt limit would practically double the amount of bonds Milwaukee county could issue. The present debt limit is about $139,000,000 and this would become $280,000,000 if the amendment should be adopted.

Those who may feel they should exercise a sort of guardianship over Milwaukee county should take note of the fact that although the county now has a debt limit of $139,000,000, it has actually only $60,970,000 of debt. That indicates Milwaukee county is thrifty and careful with its money and is well able to manage its own affairs.

There are those who will feel that the constitutional amendment should be made to apply to all counties of the state. This probably is true. In the beginning, when a limitation of 5 per cent of assessed valuation was set, it was quite fully intended that the assessed valuation would approximate 100 per cent of the true value. If that were the case this amendment would not be necessary. Thus it seems the amendment will accomplish only what was intended by the drafters of the constitution in the beginning.

News Is Essential

The supreme court of Georgia has held that freedom of the press is essential to a free society and in doing so it has thrown out a $20,000 contempt fine levied against Atlanta's two daily newspapers.

The decision was unanimous. The court held that the newspapers were right in publishing a previous arrest record of a convict on trial last year before Judge Durwood T. Pye.

The article in question was published after the trial had started. Judge Pye permitted the jurors to return to their homes after the first day of the proceedings. It was then that they read the article. When he learned about it he dismissed them.

The supreme court held that the publishers could not have reasonably anticipated that publication and distribution of their papers under such circumstances would interfere with a fair and impartial trial of the case and they would not be in contempt for publishing the article. The court also struck down the $100 contempt fine that had been imposed upon the reporter for writing the story.

The supreme court said: "If during the trial the jury is allowed to disperse, it is the duty of the court to instruct the jury not to discuss the case, not to read newspaper articles about the case, not to listen to radio and television reports concerning the case during the recess of the court."

In recent years there has been a tendency for many courts to try to solve their problems by demanding silence from newspapers, radios and television stations in the area of some important court news. We think it is important that the high court of Georgia has pointed out that the courts themselves have some responsibilities in this matter and they must live in a normal active community the same as other folks do.

Looking Backward

GOP Inconsistent, Says Opposition

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of Oct. 13, 1890.

No man has shown more clearly the inconsistency of the Republican party than Mr. Seward in a speech at Detroit. We quote as follows from his speech:

"We can extend slavery into new territories and create new slave states only by reopening of the African slave trade, a proceeding which, by destroying all the existing value of the slaves now held in the country, and their increase, would bring the North and South into complete unanimity in favor of their return—that is a return to the policy of our early statesmen."

The hue and cry about extending the area of freedom and curtailing that of slavery—the apprehensions of danger from the aggression of the South—are all moonshine. There is no practical good to be accomplished by the Republican party, then so far as the "cause of human freedom" is concerned.

Congress is powerless to extend slavery; the President cannot do it, except Congress first re-open the slave trade. There are not 20 members of Congress who would vote for the measure.

Mr. Seward concedes, in the extract we have quoted, that the South as well as the North would oppose the renewal of this traffic inasmuch as it would destroy the value of existing slave property.

The financial sub-committee of the League of Nations' general staff for sanctions took the first definite step toward cutting Italy off the world payroll. It decided to recommend the immediate discontinuance of all loan and bank credits to Mussolini's government. In addition, it appointed a sub-committee, headed by Demetrios Maximos of Greece, to consider further steps in that direction.

Exchange of pastorates by Dr. J. A. Holmes, pastor of the First Methodist church for the last 14 years, and Dr. Gilbert S. Cox, pastor of the South Bend, Ind., First Methodist church, was announced.

The Great American Revival

BY BERNARD WEISBERGER

The great revival in the West was a landmark in American history. It was not some accidental outburst of religious hysteria. Rather, it was one of many answers to a question on which America's destiny hung. Which way would the West go? Could it be held within the bounds of American institutions as they had developed over 175 colonial years?

Preachers in the 1800's had their congregations roll for salvation. Meeting houses in the aisles, screaming for salvation. Meeting houses couldn't contain the repentant sinners, so the crowds moved outside. The story of this great religious movement is told here by the author of "They Gathered at the River."

years? Would its raw energies pull it into some new orbit?

No group asked this question more anxiously than eastern clergymen. From Kentucky, Tennessee, the western Carolinas, and Virginia, reports came back of a world that was shaggy, vicious, and churchless.

An Oldtime Camp Meeting is shown here in a painting by a French artist. In the lower center area, one of the persons in attendance appears to have been overcome by the eloquence of the speakers and is receiving aid.

Had a Purpose

Yet the easterners were wrong. Religion had a part to play in the hard-driven lives of the frontier settlers. It was more than a mere foundation for morality. It offered the hope of a bright future, shining beyond the dirt-floored, hog-and-hominy present. It offered an emotional outlet for lives ringed with inhibition.

The Scotch-Irish migrants pushing into the frontier regions about 1800 were Presbyterians in name. But their wild surroundings did something to them. They came to resent authority—whether by exche collectors or ministers. What was more, they wanted a little stronger assurance of salvation.

McGready moved on to Red River. He meant to hold a sacramental service. What he got was something more uncontrolled. McGready shared his pulpit with three other Presbyterian ministers. A Methodist preacher, John McGee, was also present.

When McGee arose, an awesome hush had fallen on the house. McGee faced a problem. The Methodists were frowned on by more established groups, mainly because they gave emotion free rein in their worship. McGee knew this, and wanted to mind his ecclesiastical manners. But he knew a ripe audience when he saw one. Rising, he shouted that everyone in the house should submit to "The Lord Omnipotent." Then he began to bounce from backless bench to backless bench, pleading, crying, shouting, snaking.

Huge Camp Meetings

It was Stone who in 1801 touched off the monster camp meeting of the region's history. Some undefinable current of excitement brought out to Cane Ridge near Lexington every Kentuckian who could drop his earthly concerns. Some estimated that 25,000 were on hand, but that figure is almost too fantastic for belief. Even a crowd of three or four thousand would have overwhelmed anything in the previous experience of the settlers.

The father of the western revival, James McGready, a Scotch-Irishman trained in a Pennsylvania academy, got to grips with the powers of darkness in North Carolina. He began to preach against the "formality and deadness" of the local churches. He insisted that strong drink was a slippery path to hell. In Guilford County this did not sit well. McGready got nowhere.

In Kentucky, circumstances were ripe for him. He would "so describe Heaven" that his listeners would "see its glories and long to be there." Then he went on to "array hell and its horrors." The whole point of Christianity, for him, was in the conversion of sinners to saints assured of eternal bliss.

Rolled on the Floor

That broke the dam. In a moment the floor was "covered with the slain; their screams for mercy pierced the heavens." Cursors, duelers, whiskey-swillers, and cardplayers lay next to little children, rolling and crying "in agonies of distress" for salvation. When it was through, a new harvest of souls had been gathered for the Lord.

Word of the Red River meeting whisked through the territory. When McGready got to Muddy River, new scenes of excitement were enacted. And when this meeting had yielded up its quota of saved, the Kentucky Revival was a well-known fact.

The din can only be guessed at. The guilty were groaning and sometimes screaming, and those who felt they were saved were clapping their hands, shouting hymns, and generally noising out their exultation.

It was wild and shaggy, and very much a part of life in the clearings. Westerners wanted to feel religion in their bones. In their tough and violent lives, intellectual exercises had no place, but howls and leaps were something that men who were "half-horse and half-alligator" understood. Yet there was something deeper than mere excitement underneath it all. Something fundamental was taking place.

Fear Makes Converts

Results began to show among the faithful. During a service at Gasper River in 1799, many fell to the ground, and lay "powerless, groaning, praying and crying for mercy." Women began to scream. Big, tough men sobbed like hysterical children. What could explain this? Simply at Gasper River, history was made. The cabins of the neighborhood could not hold the influx of visitors, so the newcomers came prepared to camp out. Split-log benches were dragged into place outdoors. This was the camp meeting.

Now the tide of camp-meeting retreat consisted of taming the camp meeting. Oddly enough, it was not the Presbyterians who did that. They had drawn back from it, afraid of its explosive qualities. But the Methodists were in an excellent position to make use of revivalism. By 1811,

Had Its Enemies

It was not the unscrubbed vigor of the meetings that really bothered conservatives in the Presbyterian Church. Enemies of the revival did not like the success of emotional preaching. What would happen to learning if a leather-lunged countryman

Meetings Tamed

On the part of the West, the retreat consisted of taming the camp meeting. Oddly enough, it was not the Presbyterians who did that. They had drawn back from it, afraid of its explosive qualities. But the Methodists were in an excellent position to make use of revivalism. By 1811,

Tax Study Commission Plays Numbers Game

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON—There is a kind of numbers game being played by the state administration's tax revision study commission during this campaign season.

Suddenly a subcommittee is blossoming out with bulletins announcing that Wisconsin is one of the most prosperous of the states in its region, as measured by 1959 production and other indices. The inference is that everything is jolly and that the talk about the need for tax revision for the improvement of the industrial climate is not valid.

Citizens should take such developments with a big pinch of salt for several reasons, not the least of which is the interesting coincidence that these findings come at the height of the political season.

It is hardly necessary to note there is a desire to emphasize the fact that the figures show a great spurt of economic activity, actually and comparatively, during the period that the Democrats took over the state government.

MISSING THE POINT

On another front, there is a busy campaign underway to show that because Wisconsin corporations on the whole had a reasonably profitable decade, the issue of tax revision is a phoney one, designed to cover the desire of some reactionaries to foist an unfair tax program upon the unwitting body politic.

The fallacies in these assertions are fairly obvious. One year doesn't prove much about the condition of Wisconsin business, comparatively or literally, any more than a single swallow is proof positive of the arrival of summer. It is especially dubious when the same "researchers" must show that a parade of earlier years gave Wisconsin a poorer comparative standing.

What is more, every responsible study has shown that the total weight of taxation on manufacturing and some other corporate enterprise in Wisconsin is higher than it is in neighboring states and competing states.

The influence of taxation as an economic location factor may be debated. But there is no doubt among realists that it is a factor, however measured, that is getting more attention from corporate managers, and that it is one of the few factors affecting industrial location decisions that is under political control—as weather, geography, natural resource availability and many others are not.

has been comparatively higher in Wisconsin than in competitive states, what will be the result when the revenue system is called upon to produce vast new sums of money? How will the Wisconsin tax climate compare then?

These are the hard questions that some politicians would like to ignore to waive for the duration of the campaign season, because they are hard to answer.

But they cannot be evaded for long. The time for decision will be the next legislature, as is already crystal clear. The new departmental budgets now creeping into print tell a story that cannot be mistaken. The demand for money will surely out-run the existing revenue machinery's production.

Thief Makes Use Of False Alarm

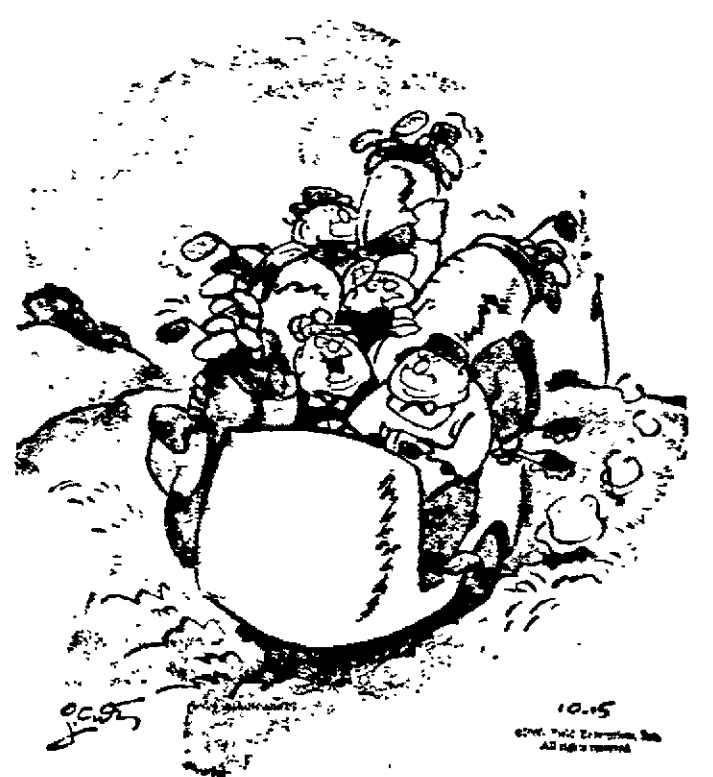

JOPLIN, Mo. — Joplin firemen don't carry their wallets to fires—they leave them in a locker at the station.

Recently, the five firemen at the South Joplin station were routed out of bed by a false alarm.

When they returned, they discovered a thief had entered the station, located the locker key, pried five wallets containing a total of $116, re-locked the locker, hung the key back on its wall hook and vanished.

Story Unfolds

Heroism, Helpfulness Walk Hand In Hand With Terror at House Fire

locked because it was so hard to open," he explained. "The children were on the other side of the door, the weight of their bodies pushing against it. I brought them out one by one and laid them on the grass near the house. Later, some man helped me move the two children away from the heat and the smoke, closer to the Howards' house."

Hanson said at first he thought both children were dead. "I know the children well by sight, they often played in our yard with our children," the father of 7 said, "but the two girls were so badly burned I couldn't recognize them."

"The fire department arrived just then, so I let them take over. It was too hot to go back in again, but I might have tried if the firemen hadn't come. I don't know," he said.

Hanson kept saying over and over, "If only I had known the layout of the house I could have broken the back window and maybe pulled the baby out of his crib. Everything happened so fast."

He also said he was worried about his wife for awhile because she seemed to take it so hard and was screaming part of the time.

Mrs. Hanson readily admitted she screamed, especially when she discovered that the children were inside the building. They didn't know for sure whether anyone was home or not, she said, explaining that Mrs. Nitzband either took the children with her when she went anywhere or had a baby-sitter. Both the Hanson's daughter, Jerry, 13, and Karen Howard, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard, owners of the property, took care of the children.

She also described how her husband made the rescue. This is Mrs. Hanson's story:

When her husband called to her, she followed across the yards. She was standing near the front door when her husband discovered that he couldn't open it, she said.

Hears Whimper
He started toward the big house for help when Mrs. Hanson heard a sound like a whimper from inside the garage house. That's when she started to scream.

"My God, Bud, the children are all in there! I know they're in there," she yelled. "I started screaming — just screaming. I remember saying something about calling the fire department, although I knew Mike had already done it — and I may have cried 'Somebody help — all the children are in there.'"

She said her husband came back and started to force the locked screen door. When he pushed open the inside door, he got down on his knees, hunched down, and went into the house that way, she explained.

"All I could see was a shoe and part of some legs. The flames were shooting out of the top of the door and it was all black inside."

When she saw the first child being brought out, Mrs. Hanson said she covered her face, turned away and cried. She went home heart-sick.

Mike Sheehy said he ran for the telephone when Hanson told him to call the fire department. When asked the address of the fire, he realized that he didn't know it, so he put down the receiver, dashed outdoors and yelled across to the Hansons. "Hey, what's the address?" Mrs. Hanson answered him because by that time she was in front of the house and looked up and read off the number. Mike ran back to his home to tell the waiting firemen and also to get a blanket from his car with which to cover the two girls at the suggestion of Hanson.

Worker Helps
Another man has a brief story that adds to the picture. It is that of Harry Waters, 667 Elm St., Neenah, a heating firm worker who was installing a register in the Blakeslee home. He heard Mike calling the fire department and found out from him where the fire was.

"After I found out about the fire, I went over there and found Hanson alone. He had brought the two children out and I was the man who helped him move the children closer toward the house."

"The two children were moaning a little and seemed to me to be trying to get up. A young woman came and stayed with them, kneeling down, trying to keep them calm," he reported.

Neighbors say that the woman is a trained nurse who was off-duty and who lives on W. Hawes Ave.

Charles Howard said that he, too, saw Hanson pulling the children out of the little house. This is his story:

He was inside his own house when he heard a noise that sounded as if two cars had banged into each other. First he went to the front of the house to investigate. When he saw no accident, he thought of his tenant's house in the rear.

"I ran out the side door on the driveway in time to see Hanson pulling the children out. A big flame was coming out like a roar — it was the quickest, hottest fire I ever saw," he stated.

Howard went back into his house to call the fire department, but the telephone was dead. He said he then asked his neighbor to the south, Mrs. Clarence Beckman, 1501 N. Bennett St., to make the call. Howard's daughter, Karen, checked up later and reported that Mrs. Beckman said the call went right through.

Howard stated that there was no heating stove in the Nitzband house, only a (propane) bottle gas range. He said Mrs. Nitzband was planning to get a space heater soon, pointing out that during the summer months she had no need for one. He said he thought the family moved there in June.

Sounds Alarm
One other neighbor quickly called the fire department, Mrs. Grant Rohm, 834 W. Brewster.

Mrs. Rohm came out of her back door, intending to go to a neighbor's home when she happened to see the flames shooting out of the Nitzband house across the street. The home is in plain view from the Rohm house and Mrs. Rohm knew Mrs. Nitzband by sight.

She believes, as she reported Friday, that she saw Mrs. Nitzband standing in front of the burning house. There also was a man on the Bennett St. sidewalk in front of the Howard house, she said when questioned again Friday night.

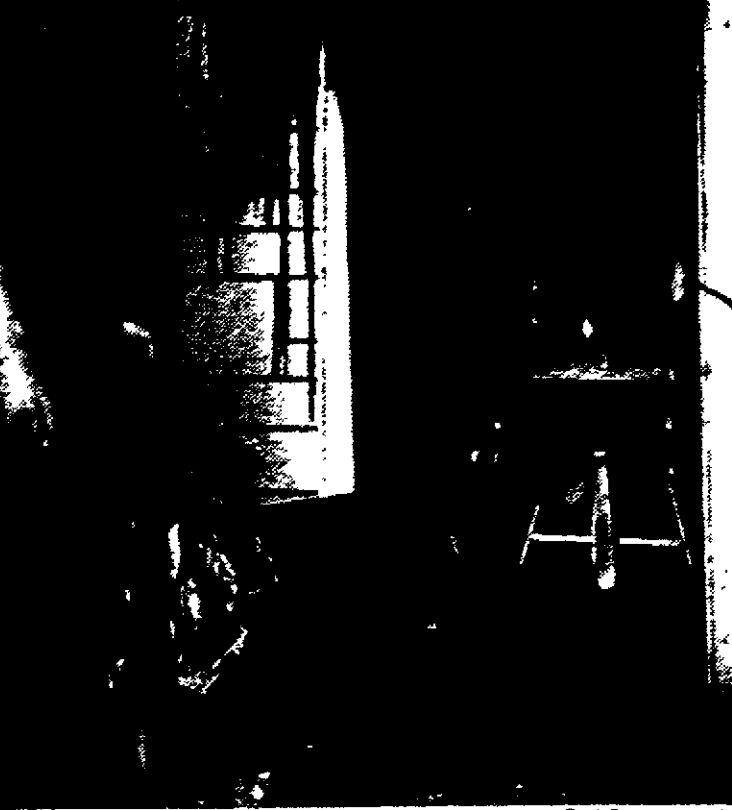

She remembered that she called over to the woman, "Are the children in the house?" Mrs. Rohm said she wasn't sure the woman heard her, but when she called she seemed to come out of a daze and cry out, "Help — Somebody Help." Mrs. Rohm said she is sure the woman said "My children are all in the house."

Mrs. Rohm doesn't know what happened after that because she ran back into her own home to get the fire department through the operator. Her son, Dean, 23, was awakened upstairs by the screams out of the window, saw flames coming out of the door of the Nitzband house, saw a woman in front of the door and a man in the driveway of the Howard house.

He found his mother phoning downstairs. Seeing that she was upset, he advised her to stay in the house, which she did.

Others Shaken

There were shaken by names and ages of the children in the tragedy. The two babysitters were fighting back tears while Karen Howard away from the tragic scene misty-eyed or crying — friends, acquaintances' screen door more than

Fire Friday Among Worst Recorded in Fox Cities Area

Friday's fire, which caused the death of a mother and four children is one of the worst fires in Fox Cities area history.

The most recent multiple fatal fire in the county, one in Kaukauna Dec. 21, 1958, took the lives of six children who vainly sought refuge in a bathroom as fire swept their home. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Weyenberg, were attending mass at nearby Holy Cross Catholic Church.

The children were Lynn, 7; Douglas, 6; Margaret, 5; John, 3; Barbara, 2, and Michael, 1. This is believed to be more fatalities than in any other single fire in Outagamie County history.

In 1957, an explosion in Kimberly took the lives of two people, the Rev. Cornelius B. Vandenberg and John Vandenberg.

Five members of the Ray

Pinsel family, including the mother and four children, died in a fire which leveled their home six miles north of Black Creek during the Christmas holidays in 1947. The father and two daughters survived.

Three children lost their lives in December, 1956, when their house trailer in rural Black Creek burned. Blind twins Gary Lee and Harold John Gruetzmacher, both 2, died in the fire while their mother, Mrs. Harold Gruetzmacher, was out in the barn. Later 3 1/2-month-old Jo Ann died of burns.

Nov. 15, 1953, a home on County Trunk Z between Appleton and Kimberly exploded, killing Mrs. Jean Weiss, 28; Mrs. Ethel Mae Marx, 28; and Barbara Kay Marx, 2. Though the cause of the blast was not definitely established, acetylene and oxygen cylinders for welding machinery may have been a cause.

Community Council Chest Agency Serves Coordinating Center

NEENAH — An organization which depends on cooperation and thrives on good planning to help the Twin Cities get the most out of its youth, health and welfare activities is one of 10 agencies supported by the Community Chest fund drive, now in its third week.

This organization, the Community Council, has been serving Neenah and Menasha as a coordinating and planning body since 1951. Representatives of more than 60 organizations are members. By acting as a clearing house, the council is helping the community avoid duplication of time, effort and expenditures. It also is helping prevent the omission of needed, but overlooked, services by creating an interest in these problems and finding a group that will act to solve them.

Share of Chest
The Community Council is supported by its $1,431 share of the $138,500 goal for the 1960 Community Chest.

This work includes recording all welfare and charity work done in the Twin Cities for use by 14 public and private health and welfare agencies. It includes assistance in maintaining a community calendar used by organizations to avoid conflicts in scheduling major events.

It also serves as a clearing house for the Twin Cities Giving Committee, to assure that every needy family will receive a Christmas basket during the holiday season.

Youth Division
The council's youth division studies unwholesome influences on youth, coordinates area youth activities and promotes activities, such as Teen Talks, an open forum for teenagers.

The health and welfare division studies problems of the aged, the need for foster homes and mental health problems. The legislative committee reviews welfare laws and proposed changes in legislation which would affect the organizations affiliated with Community Council.

While the council is chiefly a fact-finding agency, much of the spadework its committees have done has been translated into action by other organizations.

Mental Health
The establishment of a mental health center in the community is one example of a Community Council concern which became a reality. Another is the interest of the Oshkosh and Neenah - Menasha.

The Clints also had to come from behind to gain a deadlock the preceding year. Miller scored for Neenah in the first period and Archie Gough made the Clintonville score in the third. The Rockets were minus about five backfieldmen because of injuries and Miller was injured shortly after making the Neenah score.

Pastor Tells Need Of Establishing Ethics Standard

NEENAH — The average child would much rather live in a situation where "no" means "no" and "yes" means "yes," Dr. T. Perry Jones, Sheboygan Methodist pastor, told McKinley School Parent-Teacher Association members Thursday.

Speaking on "Education for Responsible Citizenship," he said "When they do not know whether 'no' means 'no', they play with the elasticity."

We need a standard, a code that we are going to aim for, that will guide us, he urged. "If parents don't make the code, children will make their own code. Children would rather have a poor code than no code at all to live by."

"Children have a way of wanting to belong, wanting to be accepted. But they are not. We keep them dependent too long, he said. "What we have is a hot war where the children are pitted against their parents." They use phone, saying "everybody but you," sulking or tears, or refusing to eat their food. "They are aware society is against them, so they try to outwit their enemy."

Dr. Jones criticized parents for thrusting teenagers and children into experiences for which they are not ready. "We treat them as adults, put them in adult situations, but without adult responsibilities." Like pulling the petals from a tulip before it is ready to bloom in spring, "we force their development."

Set Standards "We have to set up standards for ourselves. Teachers, preachers and parents have a responsibility to do so," he said explaining the school, church and home have to tie up together.

The church must be more than just some place you go on Sunday, he said. "It must give a regular sense of feeling that you belong. That religion must permeate late in the home. It must be relevant to our daily lives."

"You are in their world or out of it," he said calling for a better relationship between parents, teachers and the school.

"They are living in a world that is distraught," he said. Therefore it is a 24-hour job for parents to bring their children up to be something more than big money-makers, but to be "citizens of the world, with a deep sensitivity to other humans."

"When my children were young, my thoughts were on how we could give a good world to them, a world without crisis," he recalled. "Now I realize you can give a good world to a miserable generation and they will quickly ruin it. What is more important is that we raise people who are courageous, sensitive to human needs, wise and kind. The right kind of people can conquer any kind of world," he concluded.

Benson Reported To Hurt Nixon on Midwestern Farms

Agriculture Plans of Candidates Prompt Conflicting Reactions

BY SAMUEL LURELL
"If Nixon wants my vote he'd better tell me who his secretary of agriculture will be."

That remark, repeated by farmers in Iowa, Minnesota, and Wisconsin, points to Richard Nixon's chief weakness among farmers — that he still hasn't shaken free of that skeleton in the GOP farm closet, Ezra Taft Benson.

Nearly all of the farmers I have interviewed concede "Nixon will dump Benson for sure." But many go on to say, "I'm afraid he will keep Benson's policies."

The importance of who is likely to be secretary of agriculture is underscored by the conflicting reactions that have greeted the farm programs put forward by both Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy.

On the whole Kennedy's proposals win more backing. But enough farmers think "neither program will work" for them to feel that the crucial question is: "Will the next secretary of agriculture be a friend of the farmer or another Benson?"

Much of Nixon's program is clearly not understood and specific features come under attack. His proposal for retiring more land into the so-called soil bank is criticized for wanting to take "only the poorest land out of production which doesn't cut surpluses." In the more marginal farming areas of northern Minnesota and western Wisconsin some merchants complain, "The farmers who put their farms into the 'soil-bank' have stopped buying machinery or parts."

About the strongest support I heard for Nixon's farm ideas were these comments: "He's right when he says it will take several years to work out of this mess" and "At least he hasn't made a lot of promises he couldn't keep, like Eisenhower did."

Kennedy's proposals are generally interpreted as urging a return to controls on production with higher price supports.

Iowa Dislikes Surplus

Among the farm counties I visited, this prospect draws its strongest support in the cash grain area of central Iowa. Most of these farmers produce a surplus of corn, beyond what they feed to their own hogs, and which they have sold largely in recent years to the government.

Two years ago corn acreage controls were lifted and the diversified farmers show up in other comments like these: "Controls are no good in the long run, but who knows whether we'll live that long." "Controls are bad, but I can't see any other way to stop these surpluses."

Not Bad Enough

"Once you put on controls you never get them off. Things aren't bad enough for controls yet."

Still other farmers think both Kennedy and Nixon are "way off in their plowing" in placing their main emphasis on raising farm prices.

"Our troubles are due to increases in taxes, wages, and machinery prices," remarked one Minnesota farmer. "Nothing will help us unless they stop this inflation in the rest of the economy."

Among the more diversified farmers, the decision on how to vote in November tends to reflect more their attitudes toward the Democratic and Republican parties than either Kennedy's or Nixon's proposals.

"Nixon's program isn't bad if he'd carry it out," remarked one former Eisenhower supporter. "But after eight Benson years I just don't trust the Republican party. The Democrats have always done more for us."

Merchants Fear Taxes

The key to how the farm states are likely to go seems to hinge less on the specific farm programs Nixon and Kennedy have put forward than on how weak or strong is the desire for a change in the administration.

This shows up particularly in the attitudes of the merchants in rural towns, who have constituted the backbone of Republican strength in the farm belt. These merchants generally report their business is down "because farmers haven't got the money." Some of these merchants echo the feeling of a hardware dealer in Churden, Iowa, who declared, "The small farmer has to be saved. We need a complete change."

But more of the merchants protest, "Who is going to pay the taxes for these subsidies?" or, "No one gives us a dime to stay in business." Generally these merchants seem satisfied that "Nixon is a new man and he'll give us some change."

Harbor Pilot May be Answer to Bay Problem

GREEN BAY — A city-employed harbor pilot thoroughly familiar with the channel of the Fox River and the six bridges in the inner harbor may be the answer to the rash of boat-bridge accidents here. The harbor pilot would board large inbound vessels and also guide them out of the harbor.

Such a pilotage service, rather than a second harbor tug, is the real navigation need here, it was concluded at a meeting of the city council's improvements committee with shipping officials.

The committee held a detailed discussion with Reiss Steamship Co. Officials and representatives of Leich's Transfer and Storage

Co. Leich's operates general cargo docks here and furnishes stevedoring services to all foreign cargo vessels that put in here. Reiss operates the single harbor tug here.

Also attending the meeting were John F. Sainsbury, Brown County port director, and E. R. Wooley, Chicago, a civil engineer with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

An estimated $44,000 damage has been done to pilings and the three city highway bridges in the inner harbor at Main, Walnut and Mason streets in four navigation mishaps this season involving four foreign ships.

The latest accident on Oct. 6 involves about $25,000 damage to the main support girder on the east span of the Main Street bridge. The open span was hit by the 500-foot chartered cargo freighter, The Bonde, while she was coming through the bridge.

A harbor pilot who could possibly also serve as harbor master, was proposed instead. A salary of $12,500 for the nine months of the navigation season probably would be needed to get a capable pilot, it was suggested.

A pilotage fee of from $50 to $75 a boat would be charged to help the city recover some of its costs.

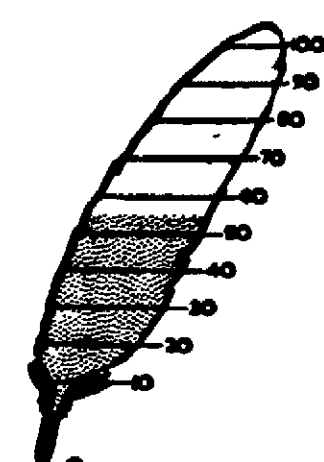

Several Reasons The discussion brought out several reasons for the series of ship-bridge accidents this season. H. J. Rake, Sheboygan, marine superintendent for the Reiss Steamship Co., which operates a fleet of nine lakes coal carriers, said the harbor here is new and strange to many ocean-going captains. A veteran Great Lakes sailor himself, he observed that "the salt water men" are not used to maneuvering in confined waters, such as the Fox River.

Glen Bergerson, captain of the Reiss harbor tug assigned to the harbor here, said the Fox River current last spring was as swift as he can recall in 27 years of duty here. He said the situation is now normal, although the lake level remains high.

Three Youths Face Trial For Beating Second Degree Murder Charges Filed at Shawano

SHAWANO (AP)—Three youths who live on the Menominee Indian Reservation near here have been bound over to Circuit Court on second degree murder charges in connection with the rake beating of an Odanah man.

Municipal Judge R. H. Fischer Thursday ordered the men held under $10,000 bail each. They are Robert Hawpetoss, 20, and his brother John, 22, and Leroy Suck, 21, all of Keshena.

William Nellis Jr., 24, a resident of the Bad River Indian Reservation in Ashland County, died in a Shawano hospital Sept. 6, three days after he was beaten with a garden rake.

John Hawpetoss and Suck were arrested shortly after Nellis was found, but Robert Hawpetoss eluded police for nearly three weeks. He was plotting a scheme to free his brother and Suck from the Shawano County jail when he was captured near the McNamara State Prison camp on Lake Tomahawk by the sheriff's department from Rhinelander.

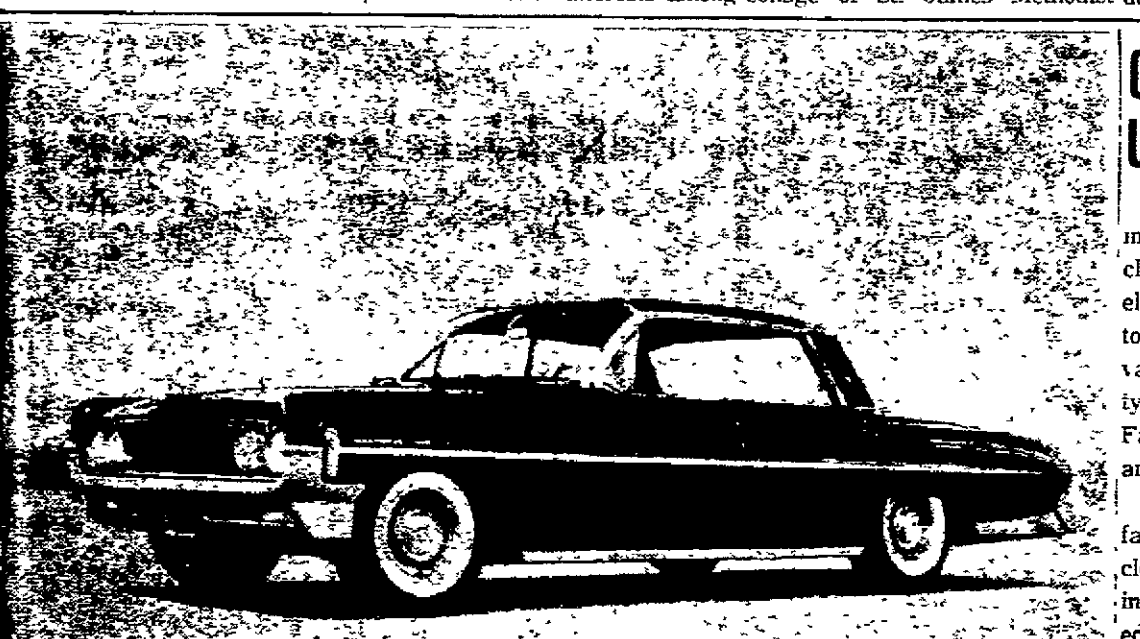

Nellis had gone to Keshena after failing to find work at Amigo. He was invited to stay at a friend's home and joined a party on Saturday, Sept. 3 to take in the Shawano County Fair. The beating allegedly occurred when a fight broke out after the group returned the returns from the employees last to Keshena.

Nellis was separated from his wife. She lives on the Bad River reservation with two children, 4 and 5.

Clothes Dryer Has Many "Plus" Uses, Appleton Appliance Says

Especially designed for increasing popular wash 'n wear already, come and see one at the clothes, the new Norge gas or electric dryer has four push-button controls that automatically vary the heat input for different types of fabrics, according to Fayette Lighter of Appleton Appliance Co., 507 W. College Ave.

In Norge there is a big 21-inch fan, away at the back of the clothes. Fresh, clean air is pulled in, waist high, and is gently heated and spread evenly by this big fan, blowing the air straight through the clothes.

As the cylinder tumbles, the even diffusion of air in the cylinder lifts even the heaviest blanket.

You can also stop all tumbling in this dryer, Appleton Appliance said, and take your choice of heats and dry quickly and safely, those luxury items which should not be tumbled.

For instance, you can dry your jeweled cashmere sweaters, hand knit afghans, argyle hand knit socks—even those nylon stockings which most women have to drape on the shower rod. It is even good for drying out a "rained-on" newspaper to fluffing your mink stole.

Food Pages Will Look Like Sports Section Soon

The husky frames and chiseled features of some of the country's top athletes will soon be appearing in food pages of the Appleton Post-Crescent. The promoter of this sports extravaganza is Broadcast Chli.

All through November, Broadcast will run large space newspaper ads illustrating such outstanding athletes as Lloyd Mangrum, Chuck Conerly, Stein Eriksen and Buddy Bormar. These athletes will be selling Broadcast Chili as a perfect change-of-pace meal. The theme of the campaign is carried in the headlines — "Hungry for Something Different? Try Broadcast Chili."

'60s May be Time Of Rail Mergers

Consolidation Moves Rolling; Climate Right for Such Action

By JACK ADAMS
WASHINGTON (AP)—The years 1960-70 may well be known as the decade of the great railroad mergers.

The consolidation move is rolling and the climate is right. A prime factor is the attitude of the present Interstate Commerce Commission. It is frankly favorable to mergers which will effect economies and help put the industry on a sounder financial base.

The ICC, which has the power to suspend the antitrust laws in the transportation field, told Congress more than four years ago that "railroad mergers should be encouraged."

Three Mergers
The industry took it from there. Since 1957, three important mergers have been approved, two of them in the last 12 months. Six merger applications are now pending before the commission. Others are in the making.

So pronounced is the trend that President James Symes of the Pennsylvania Railroad said the other day he thinks that eventually there will be only about a dozen major systems in the country—three or four in the East, about three in the South, five or six in the West.

At this time there are 692 separate operating companies, 111 of them of the Class I variety, doing $3 billion or more railroad business a year. The others are in short line operations.

Led Off in March
The merger movement was led off in March 1957, when the Louisville & Nashville got authority to absorb its affiliate, the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis and establish a unified system.

In October of last year, Norfolk & Western and the Virginian Railway, both major coal-carriers, were given the nod to go ahead with a consolidation expected to increase the net income of the two by $12 million a year. The plan was approved in the record time of seven months.

Last month, the ICC sanctioned the merger of the Erie and the Lackawanna, which hope within five years to be saving $13 million in operating costs annually. Again action was fast, with the proceeding taking just a little over a year.

Before Commission
An application by the Chesapeake & Ohio for permission to acquire stock control of the Baltimore & Ohio.

A rival bid by the New York Central to control B. & O., coupled with a proposal that all three lines should eventually merge. In these proceedings, the Chicago & Eastern Illinois has asked to be included in this or any major consolidation of eastern roads.

Railroad Consolidation—Gal 2
A proposal by the Chicago and North Western to buy the Minneapolis & St. Louis was approved Saturday.

A projected merger of the Atlantic Coast Line and the Seaboard Air Line in which competing roads are demanding that approval be granted only if ACL divests itself of its interest in the L. & N.

A request by Illinois Central that at Ft. Eustis Army Hospital, Va., if such divestment occurs, it be permitted to control L. & N. A proposal by Southern Pacific to acquire all of the capital stock of Western Pacific.

Canadian Pacific
A plan of the Canadian Pacific to put three subsidiaries, the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic; Soo Line, and Wisconsin Central into a single operating unit.

The boards of Great Northern, the Northern Pacific, the Burlington, and the Spokane, Portland & Seattle have voted for merger but have not yet submitted a formal application.

The Milwaukee Road and the Rock Island have employed special counsel to work out a consolidation plan for them.

Southern Railway
Southern Railway has called a special stockholders meeting for home.

Chilton Church Site of Unit's Reformation Rite

CHILTON—Ebenezer Evangelical and Reformed Church here will be the setting Oct. 30 for Reformation Day services of the Calumet County Area Ministerial Association, the Rev. Quentin Moeschberger, pastor of the host congregation, has announced.

Dr. Reuben Hueneman, Minneapolis, will be guest speaker. He is president of the new United Church of Christ seminary there.

A special choir will be formed with Prof. Edward Thuesen, Lakeland College, Plymouth, as director. Comprising the group will be selected members of the church choirs of all the congregations represented.

Undefeated Ghosts Outclass Shawano for Fifth Victory

M-E Leaders Post Third Shutout in Row

KAUKAUNA — Combining a strong, grinding ground attack with a rock wall defense the Kaukauna Ghosts continued undefeated here Friday night as they claimed a 19-0 homecoming win over an outclassed Shawano Indian squad.

The win gives Kaukauna a 4-0 Mid-Eastern Conference record and a 5-0 over-all season's mark. The Ghost defense has held opponents scoreless the last three games and allowed only 20 points in all games.

Kaukauna scored a touchdown in the opening period and added two in the second quarter. The second half saw the Ghosts dominate but unable to push over any further tallies as the substitutions by Coach Harry Wilson and the determination of the Indians combined to halt Kaukauna threats. Wilson gave many of his underclassmen a chance to play during the second half.

Minus Yardage So tough was the Kaukauna forward wall, the Indians finished the evening with a minus 36 yards rushing. Over-all, the losers managed only 13 yards gained, thanks to five completed passes. Shawano tried 12 rushing plays in the first half, losing yardage of seven and of these. Eight rushing plays in the second half resulted in losing ground on five occasions.

Seven times the Shawano quarterback was smeared for big down threat with a 16-yard aeroloss as they faded to pass. The Indians attempted 13 passes and put the ball on the New London completed five. They picked up three first downs all evening, two on passes and one rushing.

12-Yard TD Run The Ghosts scored the first time they had their hands on the ball, despite two 5 - yard penalties which slowed their 47-yard march. With Bruce Bay, Bob Wurdinger and Fred Steger alternating, the Ghosts ground out yardage relentlessly. Through the line or on pitch outs around end, their attack was equally effective.

Bay, the Mid - East scoring leader, picked up the first of two touchdowns on a 12-yard scamper around left end on a pitch out from Ken Kavanaugh. John Butz blocked the extra point try. Shawano was unable to move the ball after the subsequent kickoff and Kaukauna took over on its own 45 shortly after the second quarter started.

The Ghosts started another march but appeared to be halted

Pete Rozelle Lauds St. Louis' Reception Of Cardinal '11'

NEW YORK (AP) — National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle said Friday the league planned to expand to 14 teams next season with the addition of the Minnesota Vikings, representing Minneapolis-St. Paul.

"Each of six teams in our league already is assured of more than 400,000 in attendance," said Rozelle. "The Cardinals, who were moved to St. Louis from Chicago, have had a very fine reception. Dallas, our thirteenth team, may take a bit longer to catch on."

Rozelle said the league was taking a major step this year by moving its selection committee meeting back to Dec. 27.

"We're taking a chance that another league may sign players before our December meeting," he said, "but we're doing it to avoid a repetition of last year's confusion over double signings."

Papermaker '11' Rallies To Tie New London In Homecoming Game

Bulldogs' Stout Defenses Thwarts Several Threats

BY JIM HARP Post-Crescent Staff Writer

KIMBERLY — New London duffed the Kimberly High School homecoming spirits here Friday night by holding the Papermakers to a 7-7 deadlock in a hard fought Mid-Eastern Conference battle.

The tie gives both teams a 1-2-1 record in league play.

Kimberly had to come from behind with a touchdown on the second play of the fourth quarter when Tom Roovers drove over from the 2. Roovers also added the tying point from placement.

Romps 75 Yards

New London drew first blood in the second quarter when Dick Emerich intercepted a pass and romped 75 yards for the lone Bulldog tally. On the point try, Emerich pulled in a pass from Jim Stern.

The Papermakers had a lopsided edge in statistics as they moved the ball well through midfield but found the going tough when they penetrated deep into Bulldog territory.

The stout New London defense proved itself in the late moments of the first period and early in the second stanza when a Kimberly drive was stopped near the goal line.

Tom Roovers set up the touchbacks by smearing for big down threat with a 16-yard aeroloss as they faded to pass. The Indians attempted 13 passes and put the ball on the New London completed five. They picked up three first downs all evening, two on passes and one rushing.

Scudero Signed By Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League announced Friday the signing of Joe Scudero, a defensive back who is rejoining the player ranks after serving as an assistant coach at Notre Dame last year.

Before going to Notre Dame, Scudero played five years with the Washington Redskins. His college career was spent at the University of San Francisco.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The deft hands of Johnny Unitas and the sheer power of Rick Casares are expected Sunday to help unslung that four-team knot atop the Western Conference of the National Football League.

The Baltimore Colts, counting on quarterback Unitas to snap them back from last week's letdown at Green Bay, are 14-point favorites over the Los Angeles Rams at Baltimore.

The Chicago Bears, their offense geared to the fullback operations of Casares, are touchdown favorites at home over the San Francisco 49ers.

Victories by the Colts and Bears would send them a full game up on the 49ers in the Western race and leave idle Green Bay a half game back. All four are tied for first at 2-1. Below them are the have-nots—Detroit (0-2), Los Angeles (0-3).

Browns Are Rested

The Dallas Cowboys, added this season as the 13th team in the NFL, play all teams in both conferences, and this week draw the rested Cleveland Browns (2-0). The Browns, with Jimmy Brown and Bobby Mitchell second and third in league rushing are favored by 13 points at Dallas.

The Eastern Conference-leading New York Giants (3-0) play before the home folks for the first time this season and are rated 14 points better than the Washington Redskins (1-1).

In the other all-eastern battle, the Pittsburgh Steelers and St. Louis Cardinals match 1-2 records at Pittsburgh where the Steelers are favored by a touchdown.

Detroit is at Philadelphia, 2-1 and third in the east, and the Eagles are tabbed a touchdown better.

The Colts' will be without end Jim Mutscheller, injured last week in the 35-21 upset by Green Bay, and the Bears won't have Willie Galimore, the speedster who was hurt in last Sunday's 34-27 victory over the Rams.

Ernie Banks' NL 'Stars Win, 5-0

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP)—The National League All-Stars, headed by Ernie Banks, gained a 5-0 victory over Roger Maris' American League All-Stars Friday night at Roosevelt Stadium.

Bill Mazeroski, whose homer won the World Series for the Pittsburgh Pirates, went hitless in four trips at the plate but batted in a pair of runs.

Don Newcombe of the Cleveland Indians and Dick Farrell of the Philadelphia Phillies held the American Leaguers to two hits. Both came off Newcombe, the winning pitcher.

The Yankees' Whitey Ford started for the AL team and was down, scored another himself and charged with the loss. He hurled five innings.

Blending a machine-like offense with an impenetrable defense, Xavier High School defeated Fox Valley Lutheran, 20-0, Friday night in Appleton's first intracity prep football game.

After a scoreless first quarter, the Hawks took a 7-0 halftime lead on a 9-yard run by halfback Pete Werner and a PAT plunge by fullback Tom Peeters.

Each of the "touchdown twins" scored from four yards away in the second half to add insurance. Werner, a devastating outside runner, now has eight touchdowns this season. Peeters, a 190-pound sophomore line-denter, boosted his TD total to seven.

Moyer Favored Over Fernandez In TV Match

NEW YORK (AP) — Welterweight contender Denny Moyer of Portland, Ore., risks his chances for a title fight tonight when he faces rugged Jorge Fernandez of Argentina in a television 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden.

The 21-year-old West Coast speedster is a 2-1 favorite. Fernandez, 25, is unranked. He has a 69-5-1 record, including 50 knockouts. Moyer, ranked fourth by the NBA, has a 26-2 record including only seven kayos.

He upset welterweight champion Benny "Kid" Paret in a non-title scrap last August and is aiming to get the Cuban again with the crown on the line.

This is the second of the new Saturday night television (ABC-TV, 9 p.m., EST) fight series.

Casey Stengel's 1961 Status Remains Mystery

NEW YORK (AP)—The guessing about Casey Stengel goes merrily on.

Will the 70-year-old baseball veteran retire as manager of the New York Yankees or will he not?

It has been rumored for some time that 1960 would be Casey's last year with the Yankees despite his record of 10 pennants and 7 world championships in his 12 years with the club.

Now comes a hint that perhaps he will be back next year.

Change of Heart

John Drebing, baseball writer for the New York Times, wrote that "pressure" including a petition from the New York baseball writers urging Stengel to remain "indicate that, if the owners at one time did contemplate a change, they are now undergoing a change of heart. Otherwise, why all this delay?"

Stengel was unavailable for comment. Dan topping, co-owner of the club, asserted "there are still a few points that have to be settled. Until then, there is nothing we can say."

Meantime, Danny M. Murtaugh, the 43-year-old Irishman who led the Pittsburgh Pirates to victory over Stengel and the Yankees in the World Series, was named the National League Manager of the Year in the annual Associated Press poll.

The Bue pilot received 127 votes in the balloting by 133 baseball writers. Solly Hemus of the St. Louis Cardinals was second with 66.

Hit by Golf Ball, Milwaukeean Gets $25,150 in Damages

MILWAUKEE (AP)—A Milwaukee Circuit Court Jury awarded an employee of a country club $25,150 Friday because he was hit by a golf ball.

Carl H. Klemp, a groundskeeper at North Shore Country Club here, got the damages after he testified that a golfer, Budde J. Marino, an advertising man, hit a ball off the ninth tee without yelling "fore".

Klemp was struck on July 10, 1958, and contended he sustained loss of wages and medical expenses. He said he was only about 80 yards in front of the tee when the ball driven by Marino hit him behind the right ear.

Marino was the defendant in the trial before Judge Michael T. Sullivan.

Early in the fourth quarter, the Hawks swarmed over Mindel for a 21-yard loss, and he fumbled.

Calmes, who played a strong defensive game, took possession for the Hawks on the FVL 42.

It took nine plays to put the ball across. Werner scored on a fourth-down-and 3½-to-go play.

He took Wiesner's pitch-out, raced to his right and lunged over the goal with a tackler hanging on.

Dick Boots' placement kick hit the post.

Among Xavier's defensive stalwarts in addition to Calmes and Kornely, were Flanagan and Werner.

a pledge from the mayor of New York to have a stadium ready in 1962.

Fearful of being bypassed, Mayor Robert Wagner of New York sent telegrams to all members of the committee Friday asking an "early indication" that a franchise will be granted.

He pointed out that the new stadium is past the drawing board stage and that the final plans and specifications would be ready for bidding by Dec. 1. He added that the stadium certainly would be ready by 1962.

Big Pitch

This was New York's big pitch for a spot in the league and it brought favorable comment from both commissioner Ford Frick and National League President Warren Giles.

Said Frick: "Well, I guess we've finally got it. By this I mean that if these plans are fulfilled, we'll finally have what we've wanted all along, another major league club in New York."

Observed Giles: "I am glad to hear that New York has made as much progress as the mayor's wire indicates. I had assumed some progress had been made, but I didn't know how much until now."

Wagner and Bill Shea, chairman of his baseball committee, apparently had heard the rumors that Giles and some of the other moguls were willing to pass up New York if concrete plans were not presented.

Shea said he was aware that any ideas of using the Yankee Stadium, even temporarily, would kill New York's chances.

"I don't believe we could get the required six votes for a franchise without a new stadium," said Shea. "I just hope we don't get hornsawgled. All we need to go ahead is the word from Chicago."

So he explained to his sons, Alan, 4, and Jim, 5, about the wonders of the heavens and how you can find directions by spotting the North Star.

His lecture over, he asked Alan: "Now! What are you going to do if you become lost?"

"I'm going," was the quick reply. "to call a policeman and tell him I live at 204 South Hillside."

after a couple of penalties. A 40-yard pass play from Tom Andrews to Bay put Kaukauna back into position with a first down inside the 10-yard stripe. Bay shot off tackle for seven yards and a touchdown after which Pete Bachhuber kicked the point.

Once again the Indians were unable to move after the kickoff and to make matters worse Tom Grover got off a poor punt which rolled backwards giving the Ghosts position on the 17-yard stripe. Grover had kicked from the 15-yard line, the ball sailed about 20 yards and rolled all the way back making it a 2-yard punt. After two running plays, Steger took a pitch out, cut back through the middle and went five yards to score the third and final touchdown. Bachhuber's try for point was wide. Shawano was forced to punt seven times in the game while Kaukauna punted twice. The Ghosts were guilty of the only fumble, regained the ball and picked up yardage.

Tim McGuire and Dan Spurr shared quarterbacking and passing chores for the losers with Gary Wendorf their favorite target. Kaukauna completed two of seven passes although Kavanaugh was dropped for losses on four pass attempts.

Bay was the leading ball carrier for Kaukauna with 100 yards in 16 attempts. Steger had 50 yards in 11 attempts and Bob Wurdinger had 18 yards in four carries. He sat out the entire second half with an injured foot. Dave Van Zeeland, his replacement, picked up 35 yards in nine tries. McGuire and Art Piehl were the workhorses for Shawano, the latter also outstanding on defense.

Bay, Chuck Dorn, Pete Bachhuber, Art Dorn, Dale Buchberger, Ron Strauss and many others played outstanding games for the winners as the substitutes gained courage from the front liners and played equally as hard when called on to halt the Shawano squad.

$4 Million Waterfront Land Acquisition Program Seen

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON, Wis. — A long-range goal of strategic waterfront acquisition in all sections of the state, at a cost of more than $4,000,000, has been outlined by the state conservation department.

The projected purchases were listed in a summary of long-range planning work of the department recently submitted to the conservation commission.

In practical terms the list is an optimistic one, since the department is currently cutting back its programs in consequence of budget revenue reverses. But it outlines a blue-print for more

Thus far waterfront protection has emphasized leasing, for the most part on vital trout waters.

The desired acquisition units in the long-range plan number 83, with the major expenditures listed for the east central and southern counties of the state where the competition for water use and lake-river properties is greatest.

Land Acquisition The department explained in a memorandum to the policy-making commission:

"Land acquisition will be concerned with headwater springs, headponds, streamside protective areas, and public fishing sites or access to lakes and streams.

"Acquisition will continue until sufficient areas are purchased and brought into public ownership to adequately protect the resources and provide public access."

Some of the critical land areas will become increasingly difficult to acquire as time passes, it was said.

Says Virdon's Delayed Steal Was Accident

NEW YORK (AP)—Remember the first inning of the first game of the World Series when Bill Virdon of Pittsburgh was lauded for his surprised "delayed steal" that so upset the New York Yankees they went on to drop a 6-4 decision to the Pirates?

Well, it just wasn't so. Virdon's steal of second and advance to third when there was no Yankee to cover second base for catcher Yogi Berra's frantic throw came as a result of a missed sign.

The authority of this new version is Dick Groat, the crafty captain and ace shortstop of the new world champions. He disclosed what really happened after the second game but asked that it not be made public until after the World Series.

"I went along with the general assumption that Billy had surprised the Yankee infield with a delayed steal," said Groat. "It then lighted candles."

Danny Jr. was excused from classes to attend four of the games. He watched the others on television.

Asked how he felt when the Pirates were trailing by three runs, he replied: "There still were three innings left to go. They (the Pirates) have been a late-inning team."

Meanwhile, the community of Pittsburgh was in a double that class paused for five minutes and Chester prepared to roll out the first of his wife arrive home. They are three Pittsburgh runs in that inning.

Worry About Conflict of Water Sports

Towns Unsure of Regulatory Powers in Most Instances

MADISON — Town officers in the lakeland districts of the state are beginning to worry about the conflict of water sports interests.

The recent convention of the Wisconsin Towns Association indicated that its officers will ask the legislature for amendments to the 1959 state boating regulation and licensing act to protect some of the smaller lakes of the state against the excesses of water skiing and large power craft.

Floor discussions suggested a system of regulation by size and the prohibition of big power boats and water skiing on the smaller bodies of water.

Small Lakes There were proposals for such prohibitions on all lakes of less than 100 acres in size.

The talk echoed some of the forecasts of difficulties ahead by Gov. Gaylord Nelson, an advocate of lake use zoning, but there was no direct mention of his proposals.

According to comments from town officers in wisely separated districts, there is increasing evidence of a conflict between large power boat users and water skiers and fishermen.

Regulatory Powers Town officers also appeared uncertain about the extent of their regulatory powers under local ordinances, and worried about the problem of enforcing locally-enacted rules.

One of the purposes of the state boat licensing act was to provide money for the financing of lake patrols, in the localities, and under the direction of the state conservation department.

In the first place there has never been such a thing as legal free hunting on private land.

As our population increased, more land passed to private ownership, and with the tremendous increase in the population and the number of hunters, the trespass problem began to arise to create a problem for both hunter and private land owner.

Army of Hunters With this large army of hunters, farmers find many problems. The first abuses are common, such as two days of the season, especially trespass without permission of the landowner, careless use of firearms, complete disregard for the growing crops, cutting of fences, open gates, deliberate or accidental shooting of poultry or other animals, and even theft of the crops and other farm property.

Although these practices are practiced by only a few of the hunters, the landowner blames all hunters. A farmer who has his cow or poultry shot by some hunter immediately becomes bitter against all hunters, and we find we've had some good cold weather.

We urge you to ask permission from the farmer before you hunt on his land. Many farmers will grant such permission, and many of them will let you hunt in certain areas, and ask that you not hunt certain fields, etc. You or your ducks rather than attempt to should, of course, respect the farmer's wishes in every instance. A good retriever is invaluable

Where To Go "Where can I go hunting?" is a question asked more and more each year.

Each year we find more land posted against hunting. The hunter must continually spend more time and money seeking a place to hunt. What has happened to the so-called "free hunting" which many hunters feel the purchase of a hunting license entitles them to?

Warden Summarizes Hunting Situation

Sees Better Pheasant Shooting but Predicts Poor Gunning for Grouse

BY CHUCK WRANOSKY

Outagamie County Game Warden

The big day is just around the corner for the hunters in this area. One week from today all of the small game seasons open in our county and the east central area. This is the day that all of us have been waiting for almost one year and I hope that each and every hunter may act like a true sportsman this fall and use the outdoors as it should be used.

The following is a short summary of the game populations for Outagamie county as I see them.

PHEASANTS — Due to a short hunting season last year, low kill, and a fair nesting season this year the pheasant population is up some from last year. Hunters who work for their birds will have fair luck.

RUFFED GROUSE — The grouse population is about the same as last year and hunting prospects are poor. Some scattered areas will produce some birds, however.

HUNGARIAN PARTRIDGE — Population is down and poor hunting can be expected.

SQUIRRELS — Hunting these little fellows can be very sporty but the squirrel population is about the same as last year and only poor hunting can be expected.

RABBITS — Rabbit populations are about the same as last year and except for a few scattered exceptions the hunting can be expected to be poor.

Gunners Enjoy Best Opening in Ten Years; Working Retriever Helps Avoid Losing Downed Birds

BY JAY REED

Post-Crescent Outdoor Editor

LA CROSSE — Mississippi River gunners are finding things a little tougher this weekend after last Friday's duck season opener, which was described by veteran hunters as the best in the last ten years.

The opening kil was especially heavy all along the river from here northward and the local ducks have taken to the refuges, making shooting spotty in most areas.

This writer hunted the Mississippi and Chippewa River bottoms through the early days of the season and found shooting to be the best. We "filled up" three days in a row and, on the fourth, fell short of the limit by one bird.

Mallard Population

The mallard population appears particularly high this year, although it must be emphasized that these are strictly local ducks and a true picture of the situation must wait until the northern birds start coming later in the fall. During the time I hunted in the Nelson-Alma vicinity I didn't fire a shot at a teal or woodcock. There was no need to because of the number of mallards. The first two days of the season, especially, a hunter could nearly pick his shots.

Even the weather, which seemed more like July than October, failed to hamper hunting conditions. The most troublesome item to this writer found was the mosquitoes which swarmed at hand on the close of shooting.

Good mosquito dope is a must for any hunter these days if he expects any degree of comfort. This condition will continue until we've had some good cold weather.

Good Retriever The birds we downed were heavy and well feathered. Like most early season birds, however, they were covered with pinfeathers and we skinned most of them rather than attempt to pick them clean.

Picture Man Has Stretchable Neck, Amusing Fun Project

BY CAPPY DICK

The dotted lines in Figure 1 show where the folds should be made. While the strip is folded, draw today's fun-project for boys and a sample figure of a man on it. The picture is of a funny as in Figure 2. The man's head man with a very long neck.

It is drawn on a long, narrow strip of paper. When you first show the picture to a friend, the paper is folded and the man's neck is quite ordinary (Figure 1). Suddenly, however, you pull the folded strip open (Figure 2) and, to the surprise of anyone who is watching, the man's neck becomes as long as a giraffe's.

The diagram printed above shows how to make the picture. First cut a strip of white paper 11 inches long and one and a half inches wide. Then starting at the top of the strip fold it 10 times, dividing it into sections three fourths of an inch deep.

3. What is Japan's national anthem?

4. What people did William the Conqueror lead when he subdued England in 1066?

5. What does the German phrase "Mein Kampf" mean in English?

Answers

1. The Church of the Transfiguration. It is on 29th Street, near Fifth Avenue, in New York City.

2. National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

3. "Kimi Ga Yo," which, freely translated, means "May the Emperor's reign be a long one."

4. The Normans.

5. "My Battle."

Opened up, the man has a very long neck.

should be on the top section of the strip and his body on the last section which is larger than the others. The head and body of the man are joined by a short neck. Next open the strip and as in Figure 1 extend the man's neck by drawing two long lines all the way down the strip. This completes the funny picture. Fold the strip again. Holding the bottom section in one hand and the top section in the other, suddenly pull it open. This will reveal the full length of the man's neck and the effect will be very funny to see.

Tarzan's First Mate Now Plays Old Maid

Elmo Lincoln's Leading Lady Portrays

Aunt on CBS' Comedy Series on Mondays

BY JINGO

The first person to portray that immortal film scene, "Me Jane. You Tarzan," is asking to be a guest in your home each Monday evening.

For those of you who would not choose Hollywood history as your category in a quiz show, the lovely who pronounced those classic words in 1918 was Enid Markey playing Jane in the first Tarzan film opposite Elmo Lincoln.

Last Monday CBS premiered her most recent effort in which she speaks much more coherently, "Bringing Up Buddy." And what does Tarzan's mate play now 42 years later? Why an old maid aunt busy carrying out the duties of the title.

While claiming a first in the Tarzan history, Miss Markey also has a last to her credit. The other James through the years have worn much less than the full safari togs Miss Markey did.

Max Liebman will air his special spoofing of all things—the sacred rite of unveiling the new automobile models on Channel 2 next Wednesday.

The cast that is tangled up in the introduction of the new "Midge" will include Hans Conried, Pat Carroll, Shari Lewis and Jackie Cooper.

Speaking of Cooper reminds us of some of the other kid stars thing that to do with old Uncle Bulgie's grown up. Shirley Temple, a prime example, struck a semi-interview. Susskind is planning a nissent note that may have been Laurel and Hardy special. Nikita missed in her "Tom and Huck" apparently turned him down since show. Huck was Teddy Rooney, word is out Jackie Gleason will be a scion of a child star. The shepherding Hardy to Art Carney's iff in the show was "The Kid" Laurel.

This may be a report on the secrets of a girl's heart. Juliet Prowse, charged with larceny in the theft of "Can-Can," is said to be sweet on Frankie Boy. Maybe so! She charged Perry Como three times the price she received from Sinatra for her appearance on his show.

There seems to be a spate of possible strange casting going on in Hollywood. Word has it that Roz Russell has landed the Molly Goldberg part in the filmed "A Majority of One." Alec Guinness is said to have the Hardwicke Japanese role.

Word also is around that Liz Taylor is being sought for that down to earth role of Gittel in "Two for the Seesaw." Also in the running for the philosophical down-and-out with ulcers are Marilyn Monroe and Shirley MacLaine.

Casting may have had some of the other kid stars thing that to do with old Uncle Bulgie's grown up. Shirley Temple, a prime example, struck a semi-interview. Susskind is planning a nissent note that may have been Laurel and Hardy special. Nikita missed in her "Tom and Huck" apparently turned him down since show. Huck was Teddy Rooney, word is out Jackie Gleason will be a scion of a child star. The shepherding Hardy to Art Carney's iff in the show was "The Kid" Laurel.

This may be a report on the secrets of a girl's heart. Juliet Prowse, charged with larceny in the theft of "Can-Can," is said to be sweet on Frankie Boy. Maybe so! She charged Perry Como three times the price she received from Sinatra for her appearance on his show.

Plight of Indian Told To Woman's Club

"The American Indian has never attained more than the status of a second class citizen, in spite of his heritage as a trail blazer, contributor to this country's folklore, and dye maker," Mrs. Robert Lange, Sr., Stevens Point, said in an address to the Appleton Woman's Club Thursday.

Mrs. Lange spoke after a luncheon and business meeting held by the organization in the Michigan Room of the Conway Hotel. The title of her address, "Indians Are People," indicated her personal involvement in the problem. About twelve years ago the speaker inquired about what she could do for the Indians in her area. She was told the people were always in need of layettes and baby clothing. For her, this was only a beginning. That first winter she and a group of club members made four layettes. The project has now grown into a modest shop where Mrs. Lange

Laundry Linens Before Using

You launder your table linens after use, of course, but do you also suds them before you use them the first time?

This is so important that some manufacturers even launder their new cloths, napkins, and place mats before packaging them for sale — and feature this service in their ads. A clean cloth, with handling soil, room, and factory sizing washed away, is a softer and more sanitary setting for any meal.
